Terms and Conditions

The Los Angeles training group in Davanloo's Intensive Short-Term Dynamic Psychotherapy (IS-TDP) is designed to provide 4 training blocks per year, with each block 2-3 days in duration, depending on group size. Dr.

Rathouser will set aside time in each group meeting to use audio-video work to illustrate and teach key aspects of Davanloo's metapsychology of the unconscious and clinical interventions. The first and possibly second meetings will be used to assess areas of strength and weakness of group members, so as to provide greater in-depth teaching of clinical methodology designed to supplement identified areas of difficulty.

Typically, it is seen that the phases of Pressure and Challenge (in particular, the use of head on collisions), prove to be arduous for students to learn and perfect, and as examples these might be dimensions of the work that are emphasized in fuller didactic and audio-video presentations. Davanloo over time developed techniques specific to our work with character neurotics, functional and psychosomatic disturbances, and cognitive/perceptual disruption, and a focus will be placed on how we work with these conditions.

All group members will be expected to present videotaped work with patients. As the initial trial therapy requires an accurate formulation of a psychodiagnostic assessment that will set the foundation for specific clinical interventions, the trainee will be asked to present the first ten to fifteen minutes of the initial interview when possible. Following this the members are free to determine the video they will show to the group. Each group member will have approximately one hour and fifteen minutes of individual training, consisting of one hour of personal training, followed by 15 minutes of group discussion. The latter is not intended as a time to critique the students work, but to discuss technical and clinical issues raised by the cases under review. An example of a case write-up modeled on Dr. Davanloo's core training group format will be provided. You may elect to distribute your report in written form to the group members, or to present a verbal synopsis.

Training sessions will start on a Friday morning, and will end by early evening on Saturday or Sunday. The exact times will be determined once group composition has been established. This will be an open-ended group, where new trainees enter as space permits.

The 2019/20 Schedule for the group is as follows:

(2019): Aug 23-25/ Dec 13-15 (2020): March 27-29 / June 26-28

Fees and payment schedule:

The annual cost for the four training blocks is (U.S.) $3600.00. Each payment per training block of $900.00 must be received 4 weeks before the training session. Checks are to be made payable to John Rathouser, Ph.D.

Agreement

While the Los Angeles training group in IS-TDP is designed for professionals who seek either a 1-year training program, or a 3-year core training program, it will additionally stand as an ongoing program in Davanloo's IS-TDP for those desiring further training.

I understand that my clinical competence and adherence to ethical standards of professional conduct will be evaluated by the faculty, and that advancement from year to year, for those who elect continuing training, will be by mutual agreement of both the trainee and the faculty. My commitment to each year of training will be paid in full based on the fee schedule listed above, and once paid is non-refundable. In agreeing to undertake each year of training, I acknowledge that I am consenting to a full year of payment. It is agreed that I will be expected to present audiovisual examples of my work to the group for training purposes. A one-time exemption to this rule will be offered to those who are new to IS-TDP and do not have a clinical vignette to demonstrate.

Certification of training in the group will be provided to those who complete 3-years of the program, with the stipulation that they have undergone a minimum of eleven blocks of one-on-one training. Members may elect to remain beyond a 3-year period in order to supplement missed sessions and thereby satisfy this requirement, or to continue for the purpose of enhancing their clinical skills.

I understand and agree to these terms and conditions.
